THE HARVEST OF DEATH

NUMBERS SEVERAL WHO HAVE PASSED FOUR SCORE MARK.

Capt. Wm. H. Adams Succumbs After Short Illness. Pneumonia Claims a Number of Victims.

Capt. Wm. H. Adams died suddenly at the home of his son-in-law, Jacob Quickle, in Biglerville, on last Saturday morning, in his 81st year. He was taken ill about three weeks ago with indigestion and paralysis followed. He was born in Lancaster and when seven years old the family located at Fairfield, where he learned tailoring with John Shatzer. He was a veteran of the Civil War, entering the service in 1862, as first sergeant of Co. D, 165th Pa. Regt., and was discharged at end of his term of service July 28, 1863. He was commissioned Capt. of Co. K, 144th Pa. Regt., Sept. 1864, and served until the end of the war. He was a member of Benders' Church and well known throughout the county and highly respected. The funeral was held on Tuesday, services by Rev. T. C. Hession, and interment in the Arendtsville cemetery. He was married three times, first to Miss Lovina Whitlight, who died in 1858, and of this union three sons and one daughter survive, Amos D. Adams of Dubuque, Ia., John Z. Adams of Youngstown, O., Wm. Harvey Adams of Gettysburg, and Mrs. Mary E. Quickle of Biglerville. She leaves two sons and two daughters, George Jacobs, of East Berlin, Burdick of Washington D. C., Mrs. Baughman of Dover and Millie at home.

Arrested for Assaulting Girl.

After being at liberty for over a year, after he is alleged to have attacked Miss Eva Zug, a pretty young lady of Carlisle, and teacher of the Pines school at Barnitz, about seven miles south of Carlisle, John Floyd of Bendersville, was arrested in the Gettysburg and Harrisburg railroad station at Hunters Run Saturday evening Nov. 18 and taken to Carlisle jail. Floyd is a white man about 40 years of age, and is charged with criminal assault and was indicted by Grand Jury last February. It was one October afternoon in 1910, about 4:30 when Miss Zug, after closing her school for the day, was walking down the Pine road to the Holly trolley to come home. She was attacked in a lonely place in the road, and she was saved from probably serious injury by two of her pupils, who came to her rescue and beat off her assailant. The man escaped through fields and railroad section men who knew Floyd saw his escape. This gave the detective a good clue. Floyd was followed all over the State, and last week three trips were made to Harrisburg by the detective, who learned he was in that city. Saturday afternoon he received a tip over the telephone that he was at Hunters Run, and the officer was soon on his trail. He was caught shortly before he intended leaving the place.

Chief of Police Offered Minister.

Mayor-elect Joseph Cauffiel of Johnstown, elected as a progressive against the Republican machine, last week sent for Rev. Wm. A. Shipman, D.D., retired Lutheran minister, a graduate of Gettysburg College and well known in this place, and said to him: "For the last fifteen years you have been philosophizing and moralizing about conditions in this city. Now I want you to be my chief of police and clean this town up in a sane, commonsense manner. I want a chief of police that I won't have to boss, and whom no one else can boss, so the matter is up to you." Dr. Shipman has under consideration this $4000 position and has not yet indicated whether he will accept or not.

State Buys 20,000 Acres

The State of Pennsylvania has taken title to 20,000 acres of forest land in Cumberland, and Adams counties, increasing the area of the State forest reservation in the South Mountains to 100,000 acres and extending from Mt. Holly Springs to Waynesboro and is of the utmost importance for future conservation purposes. The new tract was acquired from the South Mountain Mining and Iron Company and is covered with oak, chestnut, pine, poplar and hemlock with deposits of iron ore, clay and sand banks and extensive water and ice leases. Purchase price is not given.

STATE ROAD TO HARRISBURG

AWAITS THE FATE OF THE LINCOLN WAY IN CONGRESS.

If Way is Authorized Road of Like Character Will be Built to Harrisburg.

Many of our people have been wondering why the State Highway Department has delayed beginning to build the road from Gettysburg to Harrisburg. State Highway Commissioner Bigelow declared months ago that the road to Gettysburg was to be the first long road to be built and recently explained the delay.

Commissioner Bigelow is most sanguine that the Lincoln Way will be authorized by Congress at session beginning next week. From all parts of the country comes a demand for the Lincoln Way. He attended the recent Good Roads Congress in Richmond and found that body unanimously in favor of the Lincoln Way. It is believed Congress will act early in the session on the Lincoln Way and Commissioner Bigelow has delayed building the road from Gettysburg to Harrisburg until the fate of the Lincoln Way is decided. He declares that if the Way is authorized he will continue the highway to Harrisburg as a double roadway with grass plot and trees in center. He is so hopeful of the Way and desirous of building a road to Harrisburg of the same character that he awaits the action of Congress. Commissioner's Bigelow attitude is an unanswerable argument in favor of the Way, illustrative of public sentiment for the way, that he stands ready for the State of Pennsylvania to continue the most magnificent highway ever planned to the Capitol of the Keystone State. Mr. Bigelow declares whether he decides to build one or a double road to Harrisburg that the road will be completed in time for the great anniversary of the battle in 1913.

There will be a small admission fee of 5 cents charged to defray the expenses of the orchestra, and surplus for the support of the Fairfield High School Library.

It is always a pleasure to note the promotion to places of honor and trust of an Adams county boy, Mr. Samuel M. Knox, owner of the Knoxlyn Mills, of Highland township, has lately been promoted to the presidency of the New York Ship Building Company, located at Camden, New Jersey. Mr. Knox first became secretary of the company when Henry G. Morse was president, later he was elected secretary and treasurer, and now after the death of Mr. Morse, Mr. Knox became head of the company. This is one of the largest ship building companies in the world, employing about 5,000 men with a pay roll of $60,000 per week. Their output for 1910 was $7,250,000.00, making about $25,000 for each working day in the year.

Institute Evening Entertainments.

The evening entertainments in institute were of the very best type in their class, excellent in every way. The lecture of Gov. Glenn of North Carolina on Tuesday evening was an inspiration to better citizenship and no one could listen to him without feeling better for having heard his message. The musical entertainments were all fine and first-class. The Tyrolean Alpine Singers and Yoddlers on Monday evening, the Commonwealth Male Quartette Concert Co. on Wednesday and the Fellows Singers on Thursday delighted their audiences.

MUSIC TRAINING IN SCHOOL

SUBJECT CONSIDERED BY PARENT-TEACHERS ASSOCIATION.

Helpful Papers Presented to Association and Matter will go to School Board.

At the last meeting of the Parent-Teachers Association two very valuable and interesting papers on Music Training in the schools were read and the subject was then discussed and it is believed that it would be practical to have some musical training in every school which could be supplemented by more extended private training, and that the receipts of the latter might go far to make the public free training possible at a small outlay.

Paper by Mrs. J. Harry Holtzworth

Mrs. J. Harry Holtzworth read following paper on subject "The Benefits of Music as a part of the Public School Course of Study."

The great mistake which has been made in the past, is that we have looked upon music merely as a pastime, an accomplishment. It is not that we could expect of music it would have no place whatever in popular education. Public sentiment has in recent years undergone a great change however and today educators all over the land regard the rudiments of music as almost a necessary part of the Public School Course.

And there is good reason for this change. Call music a pastime and it must be admitted that it is an innocent and delightful pastime; Call a knowledge of music an accomplishment and no one will deny that it is a graceful and a useful accomplishment. The study of music is elevating in its effects. It does much for the disposition and for the character.

What is the real vital mission of the public school? Is it not to do for the children as a whole what they will find all in all beneficial through life. Music should have a place in every school for rich and poor alike. We find the greatest talent lies among the poorer class, whose parents cannot afford to give them musical advantages. Why not give them this opportunity as a start which might lead to greater possibilities. Let music take its place side by side with spelling, reading and arithmetic and other branches. The teacher can do as good work with the rudiments of musical instruction as she can with other subjects.

Of course to introduce music in the schools there are prejudices to be removed and obstacles to overcome but very little good is ever accomplished in this world unless there be obstacles to overcome.

Let us take it for granted that intelligent school authorities will agree that children have a right to the opportunity of securing a musical education along with the general studies that are considered to promote mental discipline. The one point upon which those who direct educational work have a right to be satisfied, is that the musical work and training shall be at least equal in value to the development of the child, mentally and otherwise, to the study or studies it may displace.

The teaching of music in the school will enable the scholar to sing by sight, and the science of sight singing has made great progress in the city schools within the last few years. Quite a few of us here to night remember Prof. Harry and his music chart up at the High St. School, how inspiring and enjoyable those lessons were. Now if we could have music in the schools then, why not have it now, since our schools are so much farther advanced in every way.

Music is never degenerating, it leads to the cultivation of higher ideals of the beauty of life and its duties.

So let us aim that in the near future our schools will have music along with its other branches, as a part of education.

Article by Rev. Taylor.

Rev. F. E. Taylor read following paper on subject "The Value of Music in the Training of Character."

The Value of Music in the Training of Character!

Music of all the fine arts is said to be the most highly perfected. It has reached this place through long years of development. For Music is probably the oldest of the fine arts. Genesis, which records the earliest known traditions of the race, in its fourth chapter refers to music. Jubal we are told was the father of all such as handle the harp and the organ.

Poetry is music using language as the means of its expression. And poetry is as old as the race. All primitive speech is instinct with poetry. The desert bards who flourish in Bedouin tribes today are the survivors of those early singers who were the spokesmen, newsmen and historians of the unlettered people. The tribal poet gathered in one great epic all the heroic legends and traditions of his tribe. And these were appropriated, added to, and adorned by his successors. In the estimation of those wilderness children the bard's gift was from heaven.

So it transpires that all the literature of that early time which later development has petrified in written language, poetry, the language of song. Boberer second thought gives us prose; for "prose is poetry cooled down."

Harmony is the other form of musical expression. Through all the years since the days of Jubal this has grown to its present highly perfected state. The greatest mechanical skill, the noblest thought, and the most evident inspiration have conspired to give us this art in its present state.

It may be put as an axiom that the art produced by thought evokes thought in those it touches. Our great music is the fruit of the master's soul. It is the fruit of the world's greatest souls of the past 40 centuries. Good music therefore sweeps upon us with a mighty impact, lifts us upon its bosom, bears us on its flood, for it is instinct with the soul-tide of exalted human thought and sentiment of all past ages.

In considering music as an agency for developing character we must not overlook its physical effects.

The practice of singing develops the organs of respiration. Every muscle and cell called into action in breathing, are trained and strengthened by singing. Scientific training of the voice will ordinarily strengthen the entire respiratory system. A child who healthily sings is not likely to contract lung trouble. The whole physical system is toned up by healthy singing. I need scarcely refer to this phase of the result of singing, so soon after you have heard the doctrine scattered broadcast in Gettysburg by Dr. Lamar last summer. Singing necessitates deep breathing and much of it, so recharging your electric battery, the body. Singing properly practiced produces health.

Healthy breathing is to-day a rarity. The woodman, in loose-fitting clothing, working hard to keep warm in the frost-laden mountain air scarcely knows that he has lungs. For his healthy manner of life we have substituted contracting clothing, hot, stuffy rooms and the minimum of exercise even for our children, who need abundance of air and exercise. Outside a well-ventilated gymnasium a better nerve and brain invigorator can scarcely be found than a few minutes spent by a class standing heartily singing, the windows open if possible the while.

On a broad basis it is true that good moral health must have first good physical health; a sound mind in a sound body. The practice of singing therefore by developing good health, lays a strong foundation for good character.

Music develops both the intellectual and emotional natures. "In some important respects furnishing a discipline of these that cannot easily be matched by any study whatever." What I have said about music as the product of that inspiring to thought, applies here. Good music has remarkable power to provoke high and noble sentiments. Indeed music is a medium of sentiment expression for which we know no other means of utterance. Through melody soul speaks directly to soul sentiments transcending words. Here is a channel for transmission of the greatest elements affecting character formation.

The study of music calls into play all the richest heart life. The interpretation and effective rendering of a great song reveals greatness in the singer. For, as Ruskin says, "If you have any soul worth expressing it will show itself in your song."

Harmony is the muse of soul-anguish and soul-exultation. Madame Schumann-Heink had crooned lullabies in turn to her six babies, in sunny hours of health and in shadow of deep affliction, and had gained that richest treasure the world produces, mother-sympathy, mother-love, before she discovered that she had a voice that could thrill the world. A beautiful Parisian prima donna with a perfect voice, never really sang until her heart was broken by a pretending admirer. These, joy and agony, the artists that fashion and adorn character, having worked in the lives of the singer are transmitted by melody to the hearer, developing in him sweetness and depth by means of another's anguish or joy. What are we furnishing in our school curriculum to touch like this the springs of the heart and delicately fashion and perfect the character of our youth?

Music has transforming power as proved by its ability to purge and uplift whole communities. It can lift above the common and baser things of life. It dispels care and calms the disordered brain. It harmonizes discontented parties and makes all one in spirit. The knowledge and practice of music is a power for the commonweal.

Again, song is a fast friend of patriotism. Under the inspiration of the strain, "We Are Coming Father Abraham Six Hundred Thousand Strong," the youth and strength of our land were gathered to their country's defense. The Marseillaise, what a sentiment it has inspired for France! What battles it has won! It may be said that no means of arousing the spirit of patriotism in our children has been discovered equal to music in the schools. For "Music has always shown itself remarkably potent to determine the moods and the actions of those who yield to its influence." Ideals play a large part in the moulding of character. For the ideal determines the achievement. The work we do and the manner in which we do it gets, in some of its influences, wrought into the texture of our lives. Theft does not produce character lauded for honesty. That which heightens ideal is a mighty element in life.

Few things affect the ideal more than does music. Have you not come out from hearing a great oratorio with the exalted sense that you have been in some other, higher world. You want to keep silence with your thoughts, lest the spell be broken and you drop to common things. How a noble song purifies thought and prompts to form high purposes.

The love of great music indicates nobleness and the devoted study of it exalts the ideal and secures high results in life-work. Shakespeare has put the opposite of this in those lines about the sweet power of music by which "the poet

Did feign that Orpheus drew trees, stones and floods; Since not so stockish, hard and full of rage, But music for the time doth change his nature. The man that hath no music in himself, Nor is not moved with concord of sweet sounds, Is fit for treasons, stratagems and spoils; The motions of his spirit are as dull as night

And his affections dark as Erebus: Let no such man be trusted."

Clearly the musical faculty and the ideal are very close to each other and affect each other directly. And are the introduction of noble music early in the training of a life and throughout the life tends to heighten ideals.

In this discussion we cannot fail to notice the part music plays in religion. The school trains character chiefly through intellectual and moral channels; the Church through moral and spiritual. Both are essential in development of life. The school's training while fundamental furnishes a foundation on which the Church can build more greatly the superstructure, life that is real and eternal.

No part in the Church's ritual in this training exceeds song in effectiveness. Music the highest medium of expression vocally naturally comes into action in voicing the highest sentiments that stir the soul. So we read "Ye shall have song and gladness of heart as one goeth with a pipe to come into the mountain of the Lord, to the mighty One of Israel." Isa. 30:29. Truly "Praise is comely for the upright." The public worship of the Church should abound in uplifting music.

In those communities where music is taught, beginning with the children, marked results are noticeable in the singing of the Church and in the general tone of the religious life. So the highest agencies for character development, school and Church, are interdependent in their work of producing strong, beautiful and finished life.

Character—that elusive, indefinable, real thing—is the goal of all our aims. It is the sum of all faculties and talents and yet it is greater than all these. It makes with its wizard spell all training and talent and resource over into real self, personal individuality, godlike power. And music is the handmaid of this wizard, one of her chief servants.

Cigarettes.

The special committee of the Parents-Teachers Association on the sale of cigarettes reported that they had visited all dealers in cigarettes in the town and given them copies of the law forbidding the sale to anyone under 21 years of age. That in all but a few cases they were received most courteously and that the dealers expressed themselves anxious and willing to co-operate with the association to prevent illegal sales. They told of troubles they have constantly in the matter of sales, one dealer saving after refusing a boy his father came in and bought several packages of cigarettes and going out to the boy gave him half of his purchase.

That the sale of cigarettes to children is a growing evil is demonstrated by the number of boys, many of them very small, who can be seen on our streets daily smoking cigarettes. The subject needs attention at the hands of the teachers and the words of an employer of hundreds of men in an experience of 25 years on the subject should have great weight with children. He says:

"Never advance the pay of a cigarette smoker, never promote, never depend upon him, for the time will surely come when you will rue the day you ever placed him in a position where he can plague you by doing those things which he ought not and by leaving undone those things he should have done. For the cigarette habit no argument can possibly be made. Cigarette smoking is not periodic—it is continuous—a slow, insidious, sure poison. The cigarette smoker becomes a defective, a physical, mental and moral defective. In preparing a culture bed for vice germs do not omit cigarettes. Cigarettes stupefy the conscience, deaden the brain, place the affections in abeyance and bring the beast to the surface. The burning of tobacco and paper together in proximity to the saliva distills a subtle chemical poison that has its sure effects even upon the strongest constitution. The habit evolves a stage of fever and unrest, wandering of mind accompanied by a loss of moral and mental control. And finally a flabbiness of tissue results from taking the smoke into the bronchial tubes, where pure air is required to oxygenize the blood and a nervous weakness follows that leaves the victim unprotected and a prey to any sort of malady or disorder to which he may be exposed or liable. The difference

THE ONLY WAY.

Many Gettysburg Citizens Have Discovered It.

Just what to do when the kidneys are affected, is a question that concerns both young and old. Weak kidneys neglected in childhood lead to life-long suffering. People of advanced years, with less vitality, suffer doubly. In youth or age, languor, backache, urinary irregularity, dizziness and nervousness make life a burden.

There is one remedy that acts directly on the kidneys and cures these troubles. Doan's Kidney Pills owe their world-wide fame to the fact that they cure sick kidneys and cure them permanently. Follow the example of this Gettysburg citizen and you will be convinced that this is so.

Mrs. Frank Tawney, 23 Breckenridge St., Gettysburg, Pa., says: "Doan's Kidney Pills have been used in my family with excellent results. I publicly endorsed them two years ago and hold just as high an opinion of them at this time. A member of my family was afflicted with kidney trouble for years and probably inherited it. This person suffering a great deal from pains in his back and sides and was unable to control the kidney secretions. A cold always aggravated the complaint. When I saw Doan's Kidney Pills advertised, I procured a box at the Peoples Drug Store and their use effected a complete cure."

For sale by dealers. Price 50 cents. Foster-Milburn Co., Buffalo, New York, sole agents for the United States.

Remember the name—Doan's—and take no other.

between crime and time is a very hazy proposition to the cigaretteist. Nervous, clenching, scratching, scratching, yellow-stained hands—hands that alternately play the devil's tattoo and roll cigarettes—these are the hands that forge your name and chase over other people's money. The cigaretteist laughs at the advice of his best friends. He sets his foolish little will against the knowledge and experience of the scientific and business world—all of which action is but a symptom of his paranoiac malady. The choice between cigarettes and daily doses of cocaine, morphine or bromide is very slight. To the employer of labor I say, place no confidence in the cigaretteist never promote him—he is an irresponsible being—a defective. Love him if you can; pity him if you will, but give him no chance to clutch you with his nicotine fingers and ding you beneath the wave."

WELCOME WORDS TO WOMEN

When a woman writes to Dr. Pierce and receives free the advice of a physician of over 40 years' experience—a skilled and successful specialist in the diseases of women. Every letter of this sort has the most careful consideration and is regarded as a sacredly confidential. Many sensitively modest women write fully to Dr. Pierce what they would shrink from telling to their local physician. The local physician is pretty sure to say that he cannot do anything without "an examination." Dr. Pierce holds that these distasteful examinations are generally needless, and that no woman, except in rare cases, should submit to them.

Dr. Pierce's treatment will cure you right in the privacy of your own home. His "Favorite Prescription" has cured hundreds of thousands, some of them the worst of cases.

It is the only medicine of its kind that is the product of a regularly graduated physician. The only one good enough that its makers dare to print its every ingredient on its outside wrapper. There's no secrecy. It will bear examination. No alcohol and no habit-forming drugs are found in it. Some unscrupulous medicine dealers may offer you a substitute. Don't take it. Don't tangle with your health. Write to World's Dispensary Medical Association, Dr. R. V. Pierce, President, Buffalo, N. Y.—take the advice received and be well.

JUST RECEIVED—the Latest Improved Carpet Sweeper.

Why Not Get the Best When You Buy a Carpet Sweeper

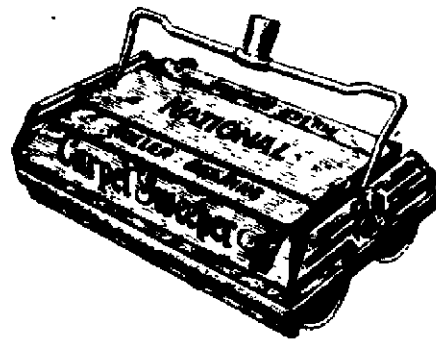

The National Roller Bearing Carpet Sweeper costs no more than other carpet sweepers, but we recommend it to our customers for several reasons.

Some of the reasons are:

- The roller bearings make it exceptionally easy to run.
- The special anti-tipping device makes it "spill-proof."
- The broom action and the genuine Haskow Chinese brushes make it gather up every speck, scrap, string or trawling.
- The patented brush release enables you to remove and replace the brush with a touch of your finger.

57TH TEACHERS INSTITUTE

THE DAY INSTRUCTORS BRING INSPIRING MESSAGES.

Valuable Suggestions Given Teachers Which Should be Helpful and Profitable to Them.

A number of teachers have declared that the present Institute is the strongest and best they ever attended. That some of the talks have been simply great. In our last issue the session on Monday afternoon was reviewed.

Tuesday Morning

The meeting opened at 9 o'clock with the Institute singing "Onward Christian Soldiers." Rev. S. R. Ludwig of the United Brethren Church offered prayer. A song new to the teachers was taken up. It was "Sunshine of Gladness." Under the excellent leadership of Prof. McDowell sunshine and gladness filled the chapel.

Dr. Ellis was the first instructor on the program. He gave a half hour's talk on "Hebrew Education." There are two things that characterize true education, religion and the home. The three periods of Hebrew education are the home education, the education by scribes and synagogues, and the school period. In the home education the first obligation rested on the father. No boy was too rich to learn a trade. So many things that we are becoming to see are worth while are found in the Hebrew race. There is too much intellectual snobishness now. We can not reach the height of intellectual training until we train the head and the hand. There is no finer type of manhood than that found among the Hebrews. The Hebrew child was educated by all the festivals that swung into his life, for the child is educated by every influence that comes to bear upon the child. About 450 B. C. came the education by the scribes and in the synagogues. The Hebrew teacher gave to the student what the student wanted to learn, and then required him to reproduce to the teacher what he had been told and in exactly the same tone, the driest kind of teaching imaginable. As there were no books in those days many flocked to the synagogue to be instructed. The first schools for children were established about 200 B. C. There was one teacher for 25 children and no people ever respected teachers more. The teacher possessed three qualifications: he was a man, an old one and a married one.

The young lady represents the teaching force of America. In this respect the Hebrews were quite extreme and we the other. In their schools everyone studied out loud and the rod had full place. Christianity brought a milder form of discipline. The Jews have proven the value of education, for while for 1900 years they have been a race without a country yet they have preserved their customs and faith, and in all great movements (except perhaps science) the Jews are near the top.

After a period of music Prof. Sanders of Penna. College made a strong appeal to the teachers on "Grounds of Hope, or Idealism in Education." First, the individual must have a clear consciousness of what can be realized. There is nothing impossible to education. There are three avenues by which teachers can approach their work. Heredity, which hands over capacity, not results, and also hands over material tutored, shaped and formed into environment. The other avenues mentioned were environment and personal will. The teacher can effect heredity by creating ideals of selection, can utilize first force in main building by instilling ideals of selection. The instructor illustrated how to get hold of the individual by analyzing higher functions of the mind.

W. Preston Hull, chairman of the committee on Professional Reading, presented the following report which was accepted:

The committee on the Reading Course recommends the following books for the year: Coltrone's "Teacher and the School," Seely's "School Management" for those teachers who expect to take the examination for professional certificates; "Teacher and the School" for provisional certificates; Schimmel's "History of Pennsylvania"; "Two Centuries of Pa. History."

"Time Saving in Arithmetic" was the subject of a practical talk by Prof. Warren. The gentleman proved that much time is wasted in arithmetic and showed how time may be saved yet pupils made strong in the mechanical and logical process. Never teach definitions until the time comes when the child does not need them and then only for the value of the language.

Time is lost in learning multiplication tables in a rhythmical way. Before the class is ready for the three table it should be able to add by 3's, before ready for the seven table, it must add by 7's, etc. The idea was left that time is lost by doing unnecessary things, and that subjects should be approached in arithmetic orally with the book out of the reach of teacher and pupil.

Tuesday Afternoon.

The meeting having been called to order at 2 o'clock, a lesson in singing was given.

Prof. Warren spoke on "Him that Has Guts." There is a psychological principle in this, for great havoc is wrought if children don't have before you try to give. The instructor left the thought that teachers must understand the difficulties of the pupils and make the difficulties disappear. This can generally be done by questioning. Children should be sent out of class thinking they can get the lesson assigned, and in a reasonable time. In presenting a new subject scatter it over as many minutes as you can, not all at once but in many recitations. The legitimate use of the text-book is to supplement what the children can get outside.

Prof. McDowell, at this point rendered a solo in fine style. He sang "Happy Day," and as an encore sang a pleasing Irish ballad.

Singing by the Institute followed, and Dr. Ellis filed the next period with an inspiring talk on "Ideals." Quoting from Dr. Holmes in "The Author of the Breakfast Table," he showed that every person is possessed with a triple personality, character, reputation and an ideal. Every man and woman is going through the process of transforming character into ideal. Where do ideals of childhood come from? First, the ideal the child brings to school is born in the heart of his parents. Many boys and girls are living ideals put into their lives by some one else but it is much better to let children follow their own ideals. Second, children get their ideals from the spirit of the age in which they live. Third, their ideals come from the books they read outside of school, and fourth, they get their ideals from the teacher and from the organization of the school. There is no teacher who puts high ideals into lives who doesn't live under high ideals herself. The teacher's silent influence is worth more than preaching. We teachers need ideals ourselves, and one way of getting them is by reading such books as "The Making of a Teacher," by Dr. Drumblough, and meditating upon the lives of great teachers.

Institute adjourned at four.

Wednesday Morning.

At 9 o'clock the Institute opened with singing. The devotional exercises were in charge of Rev. J. B. Baker of St. James' Lutheran Church, who read the 34th Psalm and offered prayer.

Half an hour was spent in singing, and then Prof. Warren continuing his talk of the preceding day, spoke on "Methods for Arithmetic." There are two parts in arithmetic, mechanics and the thinking part. Children can't think if they have trouble with mechanics. In the fifth grade mechanics should be easy. There are three avenues to the brain, the eye, ear and muscles and all should be followed. We must have attentive drills. A drill of two or three minutes is better than fifteen, because drill must be sharp and full of life. Games put children in the frame of mind for attentive drills. Devices for drills in arithmetic by which time may be saved were given. Teachers by preparing charts can give ten problems in five minutes instead of one problem. Time is wasted when the teacher fails to introduce a new topic orally. A drill in teaching fractions was illustrated. There are two aims in teaching arithmetic, to discipline the mind, and to do things called for in after life. The second is the one to emphasize.

Dr. Martin, principal of C. V. N. S., having been presented, spoke on "How to Get Rich." Many of us lack appreciation of what we have. Less than 5 per cent. of the teachers remain in the profession. The speaker in a pleasing way pointed out the possibilities and attractions of the profession. Relating the story of Solomon who asked for wisdom and received it the gentleman declared that it is the same with us, we can get what our hearts are set upon if it be good for us. He who puts the right desire into the hearts of men does most for him. The long list of failures in the profession is due to the fact that the higher ambitions are set on something else, that teaching is in so many cases used as a stepping stone to something else, and the heart is not in the work. The speaker declared that there is no other road by which you can get a more comfortable living than by teaching, that it is not a poor business, but a fair one. It is not the amount of money that makes one rich. Our riches may consist in the home, clothes, neighbors, friends, character, in fact all that makes life worth living. The teachers have the freest field of any working people, and they are the freest from temptation. The highest riches are those that fill the memory with precious stones. The opportunity of doing good is the only way of winning true honor and the applause of men. The teacher has the best opportunity to mold immortal souls into powers of usefulness and beauty; there can be no greater riches than this. This may be called sentiment, but there is no more precious thing in the world than sentiment. The leading thought in the address was that teachers should see the beauty in their own profession, and then make that profession their life work.

After a period of singing Dr. Ellis concluded the morning program with a discourse on "Roman Education." The main distinction between Hebrew education and Roman education lies in the fact that the religious idea was the heart of the former, but not of the latter. The old Roman education was magisterial and the priest. The child upon his birth was laid at the feet of the father and he it was who decided whether he should live or die. If the child was deformed or if the family was poor it was usually decreed that the child should die. The Roman family represented the highest form of civilization, the woman being the companion of the husband. The early Roman did not believe in schools. The teachers were the father, the mother, the home, then the State. He studied life in the past and the present, but little of the future. The method of instruction was imitation, he followed his ancestors. The instructor here declared that this principle of imitation was worth while. Later elementary, secondary and higher schools were established, but when Rome had the finest system of schools Rome was not at its zenith, but on the decline. What the school needs is personal life in the teacher and that is what Rome lacked; hence her decline. The finest life of the age was in the Christian life, and that was not in the schools. Quintillian's books on pedagogy are good. Quintillian said if you want to make an orator you must begin with the child in the nurse's arms. He also said as soon as the child is born the father must conceive the very highest hopes for him. From Roman education the speaker drew the lesson that Rome has taught the obligation to give the child the best that civilization can give; it has taught respect for age; it has taught that any nation that fails to put into youth the best it can is doomed; it has taught that superficial education causes the decline of a nation, and that we need the enthusiasm of youth and the experience and advice of those who have lived years before.

To the People of Gettysburg

An Open Letter from Max Davis.

For twenty years I have been in business in Gettysburg and vicinity. I made my start as a boy of sixteen. That I have been successful—I am glad to admit.

The Reason for my success may be attributed to the fact that I have given the People of this City and its surroundings a Square Deal. Also that they have given ME a Square Deal. I have furnished reliable merchandise, — at prices that made it profitable to visit my Store.

To the men that have bought my Business I may say "I have customers and friends in plenty here—but no enemies."

For the Citizens of this City I have the warmest personal regard—and I leave here with regret.

This statement I will prove to you!—When I was negotiating to sell my Business I refused to bind myself to an agreement that I would not at any time in the future open another Store here.

Gettysburg I consider my home,—and I reserve the right to come back here when I choose.

Because I am ambitious, I am arranging to test my business skill in a Larger Field: I am starting a new Enterprise in Pittsburg. I may only wish that the Good Fortune that has crowned my efforts here may follow me there.

In this letter it is appropriate to say a word for my successors Funkhouser & Sacks.

They are thrifty, intelligent hard-working Business Men, and they are prepared to give Gettysburg their Best. They came to me highly recommended, men of a clean-record, and I request you to grant them every consideration.

They are deserving. So long as they keep faith with you I ask that you keep faith with them, for your mutual benefit.

And now it is for me to say to all my Friends hereabout, particularly those whom I will not be able to see in Person.

Good Bye and Good Luck, MAX DAVIS.

ABOVE SUSPICION

At Least One Article of Food in Everyday Use That Housekeepers Can Always Depend Upon.

In these days of wholesome food adulteration it is a satisfaction to know that there are some articles of everyday use that are free from even the slightest suspicion as to their absolute purity and wholesomeness. Royal Baking Powder, for instance, is a household word pretty much the civilized world over, and the article itself has become a necessity in thousands upon thousands of families. The success of this splendid preparation is due the fact that it is exactly what it is represented to be—a pure cream of tartar baking powder. That, of course, appeals to every housewife. It secures a light baking with the least amount of attention and trouble. It can be counted upon. But it has a virtue beyond that—it is "absolutely pure." Royal Baking Powder contains nothing deleterious. It can be used with perfect confidence, and with the certainty that, so far as it is concerned, the baking will be thoroughly wholesome. It has been subjected to the most searching tests, and pronounced free from alum or impurities of chemical ingredients that are harmful to the system. It is therefore particularly gratifying to consumers of Royal to know that the baking powder which they have so long been accustomed to using has invariably gone through the official analyses not only without a reflection against it of impurity and unwholesomeness, but each time more emphatically endorsed as superior to all the baking powders on the market.

W. C. HERMAN, a liveryman of New Oxford while returning from Hanover on recent evening, the horse he was driving took fright and gave a sudden turn, throwing Mr. Arman out on his head. The animal got away and wasn't found for three days. Mr. Herman was considerably stunned, and received a good many bruises.

57TH TEACHERS INSTITUTE.

Wednesday Afternoon.

Two o'clock found Brum Chapel filled with an enthusiastic gathering who joined the teachers in singing "America," "Home is Where the Heart Is," "Old Folks at Home," and "Men of Harlech."

Dr. Ellis gave an uplifting talk on "Moral Instruction." The schools must assume some share of the child's moral training, though the home, the school and the Church must solve the question. The public school can not assume all the responsibility of this training because it hasn't all the children, it has them only a small part of the time and the children come under the influence of more potent influences than the school. We must comprehend what the problem is and then do a few definite things. Ideals are potent in child life and in the adolescent period. Human life can transform itself. Ideals within the school room are formed by the personality of the teacher, the organization of the school and by the teaching in the class. History and literature afford the opportunities for forming ideals. The teacher must not be a partisan, for one can not fix right ideals without broad views. This is especially true in the teaching of history. He must not be in too big a hurry to press the moral out of literature. If he wants to make goodness attractive to the children the surroundings must be attractive and likewise wickedness is made attractive when clothed with attractions as in the dime novel. When children have wrong ideals the teacher must transform them. As an example the speaker took Robt. E. Lee. If the child has great admiration for this great man on account of his military skill the teacher should show the other side of his character by telling how at the close of the war Lee had no home, his beloved Arlington having been taken from him, yet when offered by an insurance company $50,000 a year for the use of his home as president of their company his reply was, "My name is all I have left, and it is not for sale." This noble man gave the remaining years of his life to the service of a college in Virginia for $1500 a year. The boy who admired the military leader will love the finer qualities. To the one who admired the qualities exemplified in John Hayes Hammond as a financier the story may be told of his return to Pretoria to stand trial though he felt sure it meant loss of life, proving that he valued honor above wealth. These examples were given to show that we must train children in the presence of wrong ideals to choose the right ones. The test of character is in conduct. The child must be trained to uprightness, thoroughness and reverence. The speaker closed with a strong appeal to teach these holy virtues.

A solo by Prof. McDowell followed and Prof. Warren filled the last period with a helpful talk on the adolescent period under the title, "On Troubled Waters." This period is usually between the ages of 12 and 24 years. It is a period of troubled waters. The gentleman dwelt upon both the physical and psychological changes, and the law of growth in parts was illustrated. The teacher must be conscious that rapid growth makes great demands upon the cells of the body, and sympathize with the pupils. At this age children grow seven or eight inches a year, their lungs are overworked, hence nervousness and languor result. Psychologically this is the most interesting period of child life and the teacher can here make or mar the characters under his care. It is a period when feelings reach the highest point. There are two things for the teacher to bear in mind. Children at this stage are the hardest to manage and tidal waves of emotion characterize this period.

Thursday Morning.

In the absence of Rev. H. A. Rinard devotional exercises were conducted by Dr. Ellis.

Several selections were sung and Dr. Ellis lectured on "The Modern Teacher." We have seventeen references to the Master of Calilee as a preacher and fifty references to His work as a teacher. The greatest thing that the teacher brings to his pupil is not the subject matter but the uplift that comes from personality. The best teacher is the one that possesses the largest, fullest and richest personality. We hear much about modern pedagogy. Before the coming of Christ the little child had no place. He it was who gave to us the dignity and sanctity of childhood. The characteristics of His teaching were not on the authority of tradition, but on the authority of consciousness of truth. He did not teach classes of men, but men, all races and for all time. A fruitful sentence from Robt. E. Spurr was given, "His doctrine was a self assertion: His doctrine was a personal friendship." He did not teach truth alone, but himself because he was truth. His method of teaching was as a personal friend. The twelve disciples lived with the great Master. They were in contact with a great personality which transformed and lifted them. He took the viewpoint of those He taught and lifted them to His height. In Christ's teachings we find a marvelous use of illustrations. He believed in individual teaching and gave to the individual the best He ever gave. It was shown that the secret of discipline is personality, that imagination and sympathy are essential to successful teaching. The Great Master was tender to children and women a test of true manhood. He did not seem to care that His teaching made Him enemies, but cared only to give the truth. It is the mark of a great teacher to risk personality. The thought was left that we get eternal rules of pedagogy in the study of the Great Master.

At this juncture Prof. Sanders of the college, made some announcements concerning the Gettysburg Chautauqua and Summer Normal School. There will be given a six weeks' course for teachers in public school branches: history, principles of education. The total cost will be $30.

Prof. Burgoon called a meeting of the members of the State Teachers' League immediately after adjournment. He urged the cause and stated among other things accomplished by it was the passage of the pension bill by the Senate, and the hope that at the next meeting of the Legislature it will become a law. The organization now numbers 60,000 and there are 30,000 teachers not as yet members.

Under the title, "On Calmer Seas," Prof. Warren reviewed his preceding talk and continued his discussion of the psychological changes during the adolescent period. The child at this age shows a love for fighting, a display of anger, selfishness and questions the authority of others which is called selfhood. There are two theories advanced for these psychological changes. Our ancestors at the age of 12, 13 or 14 were no longer children, but matured men and women. The habits of questioning authority have come down to us as instincts; at this period the ancestral boy left home. How many boys at this age threatened to or feel like running away from home? When the boy displays anger towards the teacher it means a weakness in the teacher. The pitch of voice showing faultfinding is often the cause of anger in the boy. The boy deserves the honest treatment that is given the adult, but rarely gets it. We must teach the lesson that it is weakness to display temper and then we must guard ourselves.

Thursday Afternoon.

The meeting opened with the singing of old time melodies and patriotic airs, after which Prof. Warren spoke in an interesting way of the ideal teacher, relating personal experiences to show his conception of an ideal teacher. He pictured as an ideal teacher one who knew how to capture the hearts of boys and girls through a love for good literature, who could discipline not in anger, one who taught them to stand up against a cowardly rascal, and he who was sympathetic and fired the boy's imagination and made him see visions.

After singing, Prof. Knouse of Arendtsville made a few remarks setting forth the advantages of the summer school at State College. Speaking of the "Results of Education," Dr. Ellis said that the ability to do certain definite things and to do something definitely, and well, was only a part of education. Not only ability, but capability to meet an emergency, to measure up to a crisis. But this is not enough; there must be reliability as well as capability. We want not only able men, capable men, but reliable men in the crisis of life. Stories were told to prove that these are the results of the largest and fullest education it is possible for us to give.

Friday Morning.

Devotional exercises were conducted by Rev. L. D. Ott of the Methodist Church, who read part of 9th chapter of Luke and offered prayer.

A drill in singing several songs that could be used with effect in the school room was given.

The first address of the day was made by Prof. Warren who spoke on things "Not on the Program." The gentleman stated that in his state (New York), the teachers' institutes have been abolished, but during the past year he had conducted several institutes. In conducting these meetings he had three aims: to have the institute conducted like a model school, to be on time; to be in no hurry; to have nothing negative, but all positive. Rarely is an institute conducted so successfully as this one has been. The superintendent has remained in the background but his hand has been on the machine.

Prof. Warren said in his life he has come in contact with all grades from the primary through to the high school, and has found that there are the things "not on the program" that feed the hearts. He wished to remind the teachers that things not on the program are important, and he impressed this upon their minds by means of anecdotes. A conclusion Prof. Warren strongly advised the teachers to have the pupils read their compositions before the school and then to show appreciation of them, for it is a good principle to follow that "If you love me, tell me so."

Prof. Roth at this point made several announcements. He said that at the close of the school term he would furnish certificates to pupils who had been perfect in attendance during one or more months and also other certificates during the whole term. No certificates of proficiency will be furnished teachers except upon special request. One educational rally has been held this year at Arendtsville where 85 teachers were in attendance. Two more will be held, one at Fairfield and the other at McSherrystown. The code requires that all teachers' certificates be filed in the superintendent's office. The superintendent can easily record professional and provisional certificates all others must be mailed to him for that purpose.

Dr. Granville delivered an address expressing regret that he had been unable to welcome the teachers, and called their attention to the relation between character and intelligence. The training of both go hand in hand if you would produce the highest type of men and women.

A Warm Bathroom PERFECTION

Every mother should be careful that the children take their baths in a warm room. The chill of a cold room is dangerous after coming out of the hot water.

A Perfection Smokeless Oil Heater brings bathroom or bedroom to just the degree of warmth you want in five or ten minutes. All you have to do is to touch a match.

The Perfection Heater burns nine hours on one filling and is always ready for use. You can move it anywhere it is needed. There is no waste of fuel and heat warming unoccupied rooms. Just the heat you want, when and where you want it.

The Perfection is fitted with an automatic locking flame spreader that prevents the wick being turned high enough to smoke and is easy to remove and drop back when cleaning.

Drawn finished either in turquoise blue enamel or plain steel; light and ornamental, yet strong and durable—suitable for any room in any house.

After a few words of cheer to the teachers, Supt. Roth announced Dr. Ellis as the next speaker.

Dr. Ellis spoke of Horace Mann as one who had power to make and receive crisis. He gave a sketch of his life dwelling upon his noble qualities and left this message: "Be ashamed to die until you have won some victory for humanity." Keep the spirit of education in your work. Remember the next generations are your triumphs.

Supt. Roth gracefully thanked the teachers for their help in making the institute a success, thanked the chairman of the usher committee and the ushers especially for their services and declared the institute adjourned sine die.

There never was a better institute held in Gettysburg than the one just concluded. The teachers were faithful. The musical director, Prof. McDowell, was all that we could wish for, and Dr. Ellis and Prof. Warren made a fine team, the work of one supplementing that of the other. The addresses of Granville, Martin and Sanders left food for thought, and if the schools of Adams county do not improve after this institute it certainly is not the fault of the county superintendent who showed thought and skill in the plan and arrangement of the institute.

LICENSE NOTICE.

In the Court of Quarter Sessions of Adams County:
It is ordered that all applications for licenses for the sale of wine, spirits, malt, or brewed liquors, wholesale or retail, for the year 1912, will be heard on FRIDAY, the 12th day of JANUARY, 1912, at 10:30 a.m., at which time all persons applying or making objections to applications, will be heard by the Court. There must be no communication at any time with the Judges personally upon the subject, by letter or any other private means.
The petition verified by affidavit of applicant, shall be in conformity with the requirements of the Acts of Assembly. Judgment bond shall be executed in the penal sum of $2,000, with no less than two reputable persons of the county where the license is to be sold, as sureties, each of them to be a bona-fide owner of real estate in the said county, worth over and all in all, the sum of $2,000, or other legal security to be given. Bond conditioned for the faithful observance of all the laws relating to the selling or furnishing of liquors, and to pay all damages which shall be recovered against the licensee, and all costs, fines and penalties, which may be imposed on him under any indictment for violating said laws; and the sureties may be required to appear in Court and justify upon oath.
The Court shall in all cases refuse the application whenever, in the opinion of the Court, having regard to the character and character of the petitioners for and against such applications, such licensees is not necessary for the accommodation of the public, or that the applicant is not a fit person to whom such license should be granted.
Petitions to be filed with the Clerk of the Court not later than SATURDAY, the 16th day of DECEMBER, 1911. Objections and counter-claims to be filed not later than Tuesday the 2nd day of January, 1912.
Upon sufficient cause being shown or proof being made to the Court that the party holding a license has violated any law of the Commonwealth relating to the sale of liquors, the Court shall, upon notice being given to the person licensed, revoke the license.
S. McC. SWOPE, Pres. Judge.

The Best Kind of Family Reading.

For your home, where the right influence counts for so much, choose the best of that which the pulse of the world tells of, of daring, that takes the reader into strange parts of the world, and yet, with all its power to entertain, depicts honor, true manliness, gentle, loyalty to principle, as the things of life of importance in life. It benefits without detriment.

You will find such reading week after week in the pages of The Youth's Companion, contributed by the most popular story writers, and by men and women whose names are famous in every field of enterprise and scholarship.

Send us your address on a postal card and we will mail you the beautiful Prospectus of The Companion for 1912 together with sample copies of the paper.

We think you will agree, when you have read them, that there is no other paper that gives quite so much of such a high quality as The Companion, and it costs only $1.75 now for the 52 week issues. On January 1, 1912, the subscription price will be advanced to $2.00. The new subscriber receives a gift of The Companion's Calendar for 1912, in ten colors and gold, and all the remaining issues of 1911 free from the time the subscription is received.

CHAMBERLAIN'S Stomach and Liver Tablets do not sicken or gripe, and may be taken with perfect safety by the most delicate woman or the youngest child. The old and feeble will also find them a most suitable remedy for aiding and strengthening their weakened digestion and for regulating the bowels. For sale by All Dealers.

CHAS. GROSS, living with Wilbur Grossman near Abbotstown, was kicked in the mouth by a mule and was painfully injured. Mr. Gross was carrying the mule when it suddenly reared, cutting a gash in his lower lip 2-1/2 inches long, which required 16 stitches to close. One tooth was knocked out and several loose, and he was badly bruised.

To FEEL strong, have good appetite and digestion, sleep soundly, and enjoy life, use Burdock Blood Bitters, the great system tonic and builder.

An unusually large turkey buzzard was caught near Allen by Frank Richmond and Wilbur Brandon. It measured six feet three inches from tip to tip.

HARRY J. MARCH of Bermudian is very sick with typhoid fever.

CURES baby's croup. Willie's daily ails and bruises, mamma's sore throat, grandma's lameness—Dr. Thomas' Electric Oil—the great household remedy.

At a recent sale of the Littlestown Savings Institution, a number of the shares were sold at $96.50, which was a record price, the par value being $25.

A Mail Carrier's Load

Seems heavier when he has a weak back and kidney trouble. Fred Duchon, Mail Carrier at Atchison, Kas., says: "I have been bothered with kidney and bladder trouble and had a severe pain across my back. Whenever I carried a heavy load of mail, my kidney trouble increases. Some time ago, I started taking Foley Kidney Pills and since taking them I have gotten entirely rid of all my kidney trouble and am as sound now as ever." People's Drug Store.

Saved Many From Death.

W. L. Mock, of Mock, Ark., believes he has saved many lives in his 25 years of experience in the drug business. "What I always like to do," he writes, "is to recommend Dr. King's New Discovery for weak, sore lungs, hard colds, hoarseness, obstinate coughs, la grippe, croup, asthma or other bronchial affection, for I feel sure that a number of my neighbors are alive and well today because they took my advice to use it. I honestly believe it's the best throat and lung medicine that's made. Easy to prove, he's right. Get a trial bottle free, or regular 50c or $1.00 bottle. Guaranteed by People's Drug Store."

Mrs. G. L. P. ENMERT of York Springs has been seriously ill at her home in that place for a week.

A Household Medicine

That stops coughs quickly and cures colds is Foley's Honey and Tar Compound. Mrs. Anna Pelzer, 2528 Jefferson St., So. Omaha, Neb., says: "I can recommend Foley's Honey and Tar Compound as a sure cure for coughs and colds. It cured my daughter of a bad cold and my neighbor, Mrs. Benson, cured herself and her whole family with Foley's Honey and Tar Compound. Everyone in our neighborhood speaks highly of it." People's Drug Store.

THOMAS' KEEPER of near York Springs, has had the misfortune to lose $312 worth of stock during the past year. Just last week a valuable horse died for him.

There is little danger from a cold or from an attack of the grip except when followed by pneumonia, and this never happens when Chamberlain's Cough Remedy is used. This remedy has won its great reputation and extensive sale by its remarkable cures of colds and grip and can be relied upon with implicit confidence. For sale by All Dealers.

Itch! Itch! Itch!—Scratch Scratch! Scratch! The more you scratch the worse the itch. Try Donan's Ointment. It cures piles, eczema, and skin itching. All druggists sell it.

HARVEY W. ALWINE of Paradise township, York county, fell from a horse while riding to East Berlin last week. Concussion of the brain and serious internal injuries resulted from the fall. Mr. Alwine was unconscious for several days.

Highest Quality Brings Big Results!

Big Results Bring Big Business!

Business increased fourfold within the last year just because American Farmers had that the U. S. Preparation possess the qualities that give them the results they want.

That American Farmers appreciate a good article is fully demonstrated by the rapidly increasing demand for the products of the UNITED STATES FOOD CO., Pleasant City, Ohio.

Their business has increased more than fourfold within the last year. It certainly is a record to be proud of, and the thing about it which pleases the company most is, it is the strongest kind of an acknowledgment by the American Farmers of the company's efforts to give them the highest quality of goods that can be produced.

Their U. S. STOCK FOOD TONIC is a wonderful preparation for growing and conditioning live stock. It is equally good for horses, colts, cattle, calves, sheep, hogs and pigs. Where farmers feed it regularly to their young animals, and otherwise give them proper care, they don't know what it is to have stunted colts, calves or pigs, and their loss from disease is reduced to minimum. Their U. S. POULTRY FOOD TONIC has become noted for its value to the poultry raiser. It not only causes healthy, vigorous fowls, but in many cases it has been known to double the egg production. With such preparations the marvelous growth of this Company's business is not a surprise.

THE ONLY KILLING

That Troubled the Sheriff

Jake Rodman was a sheriff in the then territory of Dakota. He had landed more desperadoes alive and dead than any other sheriff, but it must be admitted that by far the larger number were dead when captured, for very few of them could be taken alive. Besides Rodman didn't take any chances. For an officer of the law was no more immune from these people than any one else. I once asked him if he had any shrinking at killing one of them or any qualms afterward. He replied that if he had been built that way they would have landed him instead of his landing them.

"But there was one killing," he said, "that has troubled me ever since. I wake up nights some time and get to thinkin' about it and always feel the same sickin' about the heart. It was this way:

"Before I was made sheriff I was 'workin' on a ranch owned by a gentleman as had come out from the east. He had been a banker or some'n like that, but had given up the business to bring his daughter, a little gal about nineteen, who was threatened with consumption, out here, hopin' the dry air would do her good. Havin' plenty of money the natural thing for him to do was to buy a ranch and stock it. But he didn't care nothin' about that, except to give him some'n to do. He was bound up in his daughter Susie, just as everybody else was. Talk about heart winners, Susie could slaughter more people that way than any one I ever seen. There wasn't any one on the ranch or off'n it that wouldn't swallow a dose o' lead fer her.

"I never could tell just what it was about her that had this effect, but I allowed the principal part of it was that her heart went out to everybody. When they were hankerin' to do some'n fer her she was worryin' because they was puttin' themselves out'n their way on her account. Besides, delicate people allus attract strong ones. Susie was so frail she looked as if the fast good wind that blew would carry her away. But besides all this there was some'n winder about her that no one could reckon on.

"I got ahead of every one else with her this way: I owned a blooded mare that was as easy managed as a kitten and could git along like the wind. Nothin' Susie liked better'n to ride on horseback, but she wouldn't ride any other horse than my Kate. I used to go with her lots o' times, fer her father wouldn't let her go alone and didn't like to have her go under the care o' any one else. I was only about ten years older than Susie and unmarried; but, laws, I'd as soon calculated on makin' love to some gal as come down from heaven! But this didn't matter no how, fer there was a young gent as had left college to go to ranchin' that Susie had met and tumbled to. In our rides together she got confidential with me and tole me all about it; tole me when the feller lissed didn't know nothin' at all about it. In fac', I was the only pussen as knowed it except the little gal herself.

"This young man's (Dick Walcott) ranch was a matter o' fifty miles from ourn, which was known as the Countryman ranch from Susie's father, who owned it. But Walcott used to come over quite frequent, makin' excuses all the time, to see Susie. Gosh, how the young feller was wrapt up in her! He would any time have crawled on the ground before her. She tole me she didn't let on she cared any more fer him than any one else, because she wasn't strong and healthy and wasn't willin' to pull any man down by marryin' him. Jist think o' this angel confidin' this to a rough feller like me when nobody else knowed it!

"There was one o' the herders in Mr. Courtney's employ that was a bad egg. He tuk some sort o' malice agin young Walcott. I didn't know the reason at first; I jist reckoned that Walcott had treated him like the galoot he was. This herder, Jim Stiggs, was not only a powerful man, but was one o' the quickest and straightest shots I ever seen. I allos allowed that if I had a dispute with him I wouldn't do much sleepin', but would keep my right eye on him continually till the fracas was settled. I was sorry he'd turned agin Walcott, fer Walcott was no match fer him whatever—more of a feller to handle books than revolvers. Mind you, I wasn't thinkin' o' Walcott; I was fearful fer Susie, knowin' mighty well that if anything happened to him it would knock her into smithereens.

"Well, one day the secret o' Stiggs' dislike came out with a vengeance. Susie came to me all of a dutter and a-wingin' o' her hands and said:

"Jim Stiggs has left here to go to the Walcott ranch to kill Dick. Stiggs has made love to me—"

"What! That galoot made love to you?"

"Yes; and of course I wouldn't listen to it. He has inferred how I feel toward Dick, and he went away sayin' he would kill Dick this very night. Can't you do something to stop him?"

"How long has he been gone?"

"Nearly two hours."

"Why didn't you tell me before?"

"I didn't think o' tellin' you."

"Without another word I ran to the barn and got out Kate, saddled her, mounted and was about to ride away when Susie came up pantin'. She put her arms about Kate's neck and said, 'Kate, dear, take him in time to save him—for my sake—and I'll love you forever.'

"Not wishin' to lose time I broke away from her. I seen blood on her lips, and I knowed the excitement o' the runnin' to the barn or both had brought on a hemorrhage.

"Don't kill Kate," I heard Susie say, and that was the last, for then I was out o' hearin'.

"I leained down on the mare's neck and patted her and said, 'Yer doin' this fer Susie, and I know you'll do yer best.'

"I reckon she understood, fer she jist got down to a steady gait that she could keep all day and reel off the miles while she was a doin' in. I knowed Walcott's life depended on my gittin' there as soon as Stiggs, fer I didn't reckon Stiggs would give his enemy any advantage. His way was to ride up behind a man, make a show o' givin' him a chance by callin' out to him and shoot him before he could turn.

"Stiggs had got a good start o' me, and he never rode a poor horse. But he didn't know any one was after him. Nevertheless it would be nip and tuck with me to overhual him. Kate kept her steady gait till we got within about five miles o' the Walcott ranch, when across the grazin' ground I saw Stiggs ridin' along at a good pace. Then I said to my mare:

"Now or never, Kate. Remember what Susie said to you."

"She knowed what I was a sayin', and she got over the ground like a greyhound. We was within a mile o' the ranch when, strikin' a soft bit o' ground, the mare stumbled and fell, shootin' me over her head. I tried to pull her up, but it was no use. Her left foreleg was broke.

"I used my own legs the rest o' the way. I neared the ranch in time to see Stiggs lettin' down the bars to go in. As bad luck would have it, there was Walcott standin' with his back to Jim, watchin' a man who was puttin' a horse through his paces. I seen Stiggs remount and ride up toward the man in the yard, drawin' his revolver at the same time.

"Before startin', thinkin' there might be occasion for a long range shot, I'd hooked a Winchester to my saddle and brought it from where Kate fell. Stiggs must 'a' been 1,200 to 1,500 yards away, but I knew Walcott's life depended on my bringin' his enemy down at that distance. I took a good aim, fired, and Stiggs tumbled off'n his horse."

"The narrator paused to light a pipe. "I suppose," I said, "this is the killing you referred to that has always troubled you. You excused the man because he acted from love."

"I troubled about killin' Jim Stiggs! Not much. It's another killin' that bothers me. As soon as I seen Stiggs drop I went back to Kate. She had saved the man Susie loved, and Susie had told me not to kill her. But there was Kate lyin' on her side with a broken leg. There's but one thing to do with a horse in that condition—shoot him. Kate when she saw me comin' whinnied, and when I reached her there was a mighty sad look in her eye. She was an intelligent animal and knowed that it was all up with her.

"I tuk my revolver from its case, Kate glanced at it and at me. If ever a horse said in plain language 'Don't kill Kate' that horse said it. Or was it because I was searin' the little girl standin' there with the drop of blood on her lip—the death mark—and heard her say it agin?"

"I scarcely think I'm the kind o' man to be chicken hearted. Leastways I wouldn't mind cuttin' a deer's throat after shootin' it when it looks appealin' like outer its soft eyes, but I showed the white feather at shootin' Kate. And I never could tell whether it was most because I loved Kate or whether I was conscience struck at havin' to go back on the little gal that tole me not to kill her. I walked away fer a few rods, then turned and come back. When I did that I could-a-blowed her head off. I put the muzzle o' my revolver to her brain, pulled the trigger and fired. All the while she was lookin' at me as much as to say 'Much obliged.'

"I walked four miles to a house, borrowed a spade, went back and buried Kate. Then I walked all the way back to the Countryman ranch. I wasn't in a hurry, to git there neither. Leastways I wouldn't 'a' been if it wasn't to tell Susie that the man she loved had been shot. Seemed as if I'd done half what she wanted me to do. I had stopped Stiggs from doin' any damage, but I had killed Kate.

"What, when I got to the ranch I seen sumpin' had happened. Every body was lookin' somin'. They tole me Susie had been havin' hemorrhages. They tole me, too, that she was waitin' fer me to come back, and I was to go right up to her as soon as I come. When I went into the room where she was she was gaspin'. I knowed it was all over with her. She asked with her eyes if I'd got there in time. I said right off, 'It's all right.' She looked happy fer a minute, then managed to say:

"Kate?"

"Then I told the all-firedest lie I ever tole in my life:

"She's all right too."

"Susie died soon after that."

"The killin' o' Kate is the only one o' my killin's that wears on me. But I don't know exactly what the reason is, whether it's because o' Kate or because o' Susie."

Benefit of Art.

"One thing I learned from art, somehow," said the painter who had gone into the dry goods business. "One thing I learned, and at many a dinner party it has stood me in good stead.

"I'm absentminded, you know, and at dinner parties I find, as like as not, when I take up oyster fork or soup spoon that my hands are dirty. I'd forget to wash 'em!

"But I get out of this difficulty easily. I rub my lunch books clean and white with bread-crumbs under the table. Oh, it ain't all rot, art!"—Washington Post.

A Quaker Girl's Yea.

A young Quaker had been for some time casting diffident glances at a maiden of the same persuasion, while she, true to the tenets of her upbringing, had given him mighty little encouragement. However, one day the opportunity of placing the matter up on a more stable footing presented itself to Seth, and he shyly inquired, "Martha, dost thou love me?"

"Why, Seth, we are commanded to love one another," quoth the maiden.

"Ah, Martha, but dost thou feel what the world calls love?"

"I hardly know what to tell thee, Seth. I have tried to bestow my love upon all, but I have sometimes thought that thou wast getting more than thy share."

Sultry.

"O!" exclaimed Private Atkins, who had just returned from India. "Surely you don't call this 'hot'! Why, you oughter hear him with us in Hindia!"

"Yes, I've heard tell as it's a bit warmish out there," said the countryman.

"You bet it is," went on Atkins. "I 'member once when we was playing soccer why the bufts it was so 'ot that the 'eat expanded the wind inside of the ball to that extent that it rose up in the air like a hairyplane and sailed away. Lost three balls like that, we did; then we chucked the game. And o' course we only played football in the winter season!"—London Ideas.

So It Seemed.

The day after the arrival of his new sister six-year-old Bobbie crept into the room to inspect and pass upon the new member. He looked in awe about the dim hushed room, and then, peering behind a screen, he beheld a strange and uniformed nurse, who had just given baby its bath, vigorously besprinkling the chubby form from a box of talcum powder.

A moment's gaze, and then, wide eyed with horror, Bobbie toddled hurriedly to his mother's bedside.

"Get up quick, mamma," he tremulously whispered. "That new nurse is going to eat the baby. She's puttin' salt and pepper on it now!"—Washington Star.

Waterproofing Woollen.

A simple way to make woollen garments waterproof is given in La Terre Vaudoise. It was told to the editor by an old forester:

Have two small tubs. In each put eight or nine quarts of rainwater. In one dissolve 150 grains of alum and in the other the same weight of acetate of lead. When dissolved pour one into the other. A white precipitate will fall. Then pour off the clear liquid into the other tub. In this dip the garments to be treated. Do not wring them out, but hang them up to drip. When they are dry a gray powder will appear, which may be brushed off. The colors will not be affected, and the cloth will shed water for a year, when it may be treated again.

The Simpson Pass.

The Simpson pass was a famous highway of travel long before Napoleon constructed the highroad. Milton came home that way from his grand tour, and so did John Evelyn. The latter traveler went in fear of his life, not only expecting avalanches to fall on him, but being apprehensive lest bears and wolves should issue from the caves in the precipices and assail him. The only actual harm which happened, however, was that his companion's dog killed a goat belonging to one of the peasants and that heavy compensation had to be paid—"a pistole," says the diary, "for the goat and ten more for attempting to ride away."

Why She Was Anxious.

This conversation really took place the other night between a man and his wife, who live in Lakewood.

"Have you fastened up all the windows and the door to the kitchen?" she inquired as they were about to retire for the night.

"Sure," he replied. "But what's the use? I gave you the last dollar I had day before yesterday to pay for that new dress of yours."

"Oh, yes, but the dress is in the lower drawer of the dresser in the front bedroom, just where the burglars would be most likely to get in, and they might ransack the drawers and get the dress all messed up and ruined!"—Cleveland Plain Dealer.

BORROWING TROUBLE.

Worrying over future possibilities and a fearful anticipation of the tomorrow are but the borrowing of trouble. It is impossible to lift the ton weight at one time, but lesser parts of it may be easily carried until the whole load has been conveyed to its destination. So the burdens of a lifetime cannot be borne if crowded into a single day.
